The Queen's Platinum Jubilee – celebrate at The British Motor Museum this half term...

They tell us:

With the Queen's Platinum Jubilee celebrations taking place during May half term (28 May - 5 June), the British Motor Museum is inviting visitors to celebrate the royal cars in their collection. A number of vehicles from the Royal household are on display including the first bespoke royal Land Rover state review car, one of the fleet of vehicles used for HM Queen Elizabeth II's first Commonwealth Tour and a 1971 Rover P5B, the personal property of HM the Queen but on long term loan to the Museum.

Throughout the week, families can enjoy a range of right royal activities. There is a free Family Tour each day at 1.30pm where the children can help Jim & Claire, the 'royal reporters' find the next news scoop on their tour around the royal cars!

The ever-popular craft activities are back in the Learning Space between 10am - 2.30pm where children will be able to make a 'royal' car to take home. They can also enter their creation into a competition to win a family afternoon tea. Entries will be judged at the end of the holidays with the winner announced on social media.

There's a 'Road Map' Family Trail enabling children to explore the rest of the cars in the collection that are linked by name to different destinations around the world.

Emma Rawlinson, Life Long Learning Officer at the British Motor Museum said "Families are in for a 'right royal day out' when they come along to join in our Jubilee jublations this half-term! The Royal cars are the jewel in our crown, and the family tours and craft activities help bring them to life for the children!"

The half-term week is topped and tailed by the UK Slot Car Festival on 28/29 May and the National Metro & Mini Show on 5 June.
