Early bird tickets on sale as Beaulieu launches A Palace House Christmas - a magical journey through the story of pantomime Beaulieu has unveiled plans to launch A Palace House Christmas with designers extraordinaire Charlotte Lloyd Webber and Adrian Lillie at CLW Event Design and tickets are on sale now - with an early bird offer.

In A Palace House Christmas, the story of pantomime will be told through a series of theatrical installations taking visitors on a magical journey around the stately rooms bedecked with immersive soundscapes and multi-colour projections.

Masked Harlequin mannequins will 'greet' you at the entrance, while their midnight banquet is already laid with sugary treats and jewel-themed glassware in the impressive Dining Hall. Look 'outside' to see their travelling cart overspilling with props, costumes and musical instruments in the Fountain Courtyard.

See the life-size Pollock theatre set around the magnificent fireplace in the Lower Drawing Room, which is being created with artwork by Lord Montagu's mother, Belinda, Lady Montagu. And discover weird and wonderful panto animals in the Portrait Gallery, from the time of Mummers right through to the modern-day pantomime horse.

Then follow swags of lavish, colourful decorations as you climb the grand staircase to take a peek in the backstage dressing rooms above - where feathers, floristry and glamorous gowns fill the rooms.

Spot Pierrot sitting in a crescent moon at a window in the newly-opened private wing, and be amazed by the towering 14ft pantomime dame and mirrored catwalk of principal boy mannequins in the Upper Drawing Room.

No Christmas at Beaulieu is complete without a Christmas tree - and you will be spoilt for choice by the 20ft centrepiece dressed in the Harlequin theme and shocking pink faux creation, with jewelled fruits and gemstone-inspired decorations.
